PRICE TWO CENTS

MONEY ALREADY BEING RECEIVED

Nurses' Home Drive May Start With Several Thousand Dollars Subscribed.

PLEDGE CARDS FOR ALL

Every Man and Woman in County Has Individual Card For His or Her Subscription.

Contributions already received at the campaign headquarters in the court house here led those in charge today, to express the belief that, when the intensified part of the drive for $30,000 for a nurses' home and other improvements at the Annie M. Warner Hospital opens on Monday, no less than several thousand dollars will have been subscribed.

The contributions received, according to those in charge of the campaign which has been gaining momentum throughout the county during the past three weeks, are from persons who expect to be away from their homes next week when the solicitors call. All other persons who expect to be away during the coming week are urged by the campaign workers to forward their subscriptions to headquarters before leaving.

Under the plan used in the conduct of the coming drive, the name of every man and woman taxpayer in Adams county has been procured and a separate subscription card made out for each one. These cards were being distributed throughout the county today to the various captains and team workers in each of the districts organized for the campaign. Preferred pledge cards were distributed several days ago and some returns have already been received from them.

Each team worker will be given a quota of the cards in the district in which he or she lives. Next week, starting on Monday, these workers will personally call upon those men and women whose cards they have, asking for subscriptions to the nurses' home.

If the person interviewed subscribes, payment of the subscription can be made in four monthly installments, the first at the time of the solicitation. The other three installments fall due on the twentieth of September, October and November. The alternate of giving the entire amount at once is also given.

In case the person solicited refuses to contribute, the worker is asked to return that person's card to headquarters with the reason for such refusal written on the back. Every card must be accounted for, those in charge of the campaign declare.

Most of the educational pamphlets telling of the service of the Warner Hospital to the county since its opening more than two years ago were placed in the mails today, and members of the Gettysburg Boy Scout organization were sent out to distribute them from door to door here.

Invitations have gone out to the Gettysburg workers for their dinner at the Battlefield Hotel on Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. At this dinner, the captains of the various teams here and the workers in each will be announced.

Most of the ministers throughout the county have agreed to mention the hospital drive from their pulpits on Sunday and the campaign slogan "Buy a Brick" is seen on nearly every automobile owned in Adams county.

7 RETURN FROM STATE COLLEGE

Adams County Students End Eight Week Summer Session On Friday.

HAD 2,000 ENROLLMENT

Admission of Students For Winter Term is Now on, With 1,300 Applicants to be Turned Away.

The annual summer session of The Pennsylvania State College will close on Friday and 7 students from Adams county who have attended the eight weeks of instruction will return to their homes this week-end. The majority of those making up this county's delegation are public school teachers who will now enjoy a brief vacation before the opening of the schools in September.

More than 2,000 have attended the summer term at State College this year, and the session was voted to be one of the most successful ever held. The courses offered were more varied than ever before and a number of notable instructors assisted members of the college staff in the teaching work.

A noticeable feature of this year's summer term, it is said, was the increased number of men in attendance. Whereas a few years ago the women outnumbered the men five to one, the ratio was less than two to one this year. During the winter term the situation is completely reversed, for there are 3,000 men and only 300 women students.

The college registrar, according to reports, is now faced with the problem of turning away 1,300 Pennsylvania boys and girls who desire to enter their State College, because there is not enough room for them. More than 2,300 men and women, well-qualified for admission, have already applied. The college trustees have authorized the admission of a class of 950, one of the largest ever, but this hardly relieves the situation, it is said. The problem is particularly acute concerning women, for there is room for only 50 new girls in the college dormitories. Five times that number have applied.

The following students from Adams county have been attending the Penn State summer session:

Miss Carrie L. Musselman, Miss Helen N. Musselman, Walter Reynolds, Miss Edith S. Sheely and A. G. Taghinbaugh, of Gettysburg; J. A. Hale, of Abbotstown, and C. D. Walter, of Biglerville.

SHOEMAKER DIES

James H. Hartdagen Had Shop in Gettysburg Until Six Years Ago.

James H. Hartdagen died at his home at McKnightstown Station Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock, after a six months' illness from a complication of diseases. He was aged 59 years and 29 days.

Mr. Hartdagen was born near Thurmont, Maryland, and spent his early life in that vicinity, moving to Adams county about twenty-two years ago. He was a shoemaker by trade and for a number of years ran a shoe repairing shop in Gettysburg. About six years ago he moved to McKnightstown Station.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. H. C. McCann, Gettysburg, and Mrs. Norman Wetzel, Buchanan Valley; one son, Robert, at home; one brother, Charles Hartdagen, Emmitsburg, and one sister, Mrs. John Eyer, Barlow.

Brief funeral services at his late home Friday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock, with further services and interment at Otterbine Chapel, Sabillasville, Maryland.

TWO AUTOS COLLIDE

A collision between two automobiles in New Oxford Wednesday occurred when a car driven by Peter Long, Irishtown, and one driven by Clarence Smith, New Oxford, met at a street intersection. Both cars were badly damaged, but neither of the occupants was hurt. An amicable settlement as to the payment of damages was made before the drivers left the scene, it was reported.

WILL DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Members of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce were requested today by Secretary Henry M. Scharf to attend a full meeting of the organization at the fire engine house on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Problems arising from the conduct of Harvest Sale Day, Wednesday, will be discussed.

MISS H. E. SEFTON WEDS TRACK STAR

Becomes Bride of F. P. Haehnlen, of Harrisburg, in Harrisburg Church.

A college romance culminated this afternoon with the marriage of Miss Helen E. Sefton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Sefton, Baltimore street, to Frederick P. Haehnlen, son of Edward W. Haehnlen, of Harrisburg. The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock in Zion Lutheran church, the Rev. S. Winfield Herman, pastor, officiating. The ring service was used. Only the immediate families were present.

The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Sefton, wore a mid-night blue coat suit with cocoa-colored hat, shoes and gloves and carried a corsage bouquet of bride's roses. Her attendant was attired in blue silk taffeta, with a large picture hat. She carried pink roses.

The bridegroom, who had as his attendant George A. Scharf, Center Square, graduated from Gettysburg College with the class of 1923. While in college he was prominent in athletics, particularly on the track team of which he was captain this spring and one of the leading point winners. He was a former track star at Harrisburg Tech from which he graduated.

Miss Sefton graduated from Gettysburg High school with the class of 1919. She is one of the most prominent of Gettysburg's younger set.

After the ceremony, the newlyweds left on a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C., Mount Vernon, Luray Caverns, Endless Caverns and through the Shenandoah Valley. They will return to Gettysburg to spend some time at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Haehnlen will make their home at Devon, near Philadelphia. The bridegroom has accepted a teaching position at Berwyn, near Devon.

BIG BLAZE STARTS AT BIGLERVILLE CREAMERY

Fire Breaks Out in Wood Pile Near Hershey Plant, Flames Shooting High.

Fire, breaking out in a pile of kindling wood outside of the plant of the Hershey Creamery Company, at Biglerville, threatened the entire plant with destruction this morning, but prompt action on the part of the Biglerville Fire Company prevented the spread of the flames to the building.

It was stated at the plant that the wood, consisting of about two cords of kindling, was apparently set afire by the boiler nearby. The blaze ate its way rapidly through the pile, and, by the time an alarm had been turned in for the firemen, flames were shooting higher than the 30-foot water tank on the premises.

Fearing that the heat would communicate itself to the main building, workmen at the plant threw water on the roof until the fire company arrived. A strong stream from the hose thrown on the wood pile quickly quenched the blaze. Damage was negligible, it was said at the plant.

ACCEPTS POSITION

John Houck Will Teach in Hanover High School.

John Houck, of near Biglerville, graduate of Gettysburg College and the University of Pennsylvania, who taught two years while studying at the latter place, and for a period of five years in the high schools of Erie, Pennsylvania, signed a contract with the Hanover school board Wednesday morning to teach chemistry, physics and science in the High school. He will succeed J. G. Cornwell whose resignation was received and accepted by the Board last week.

It is rumored that the teacher of Domestic Science, Miss Helen O'Neill, now Mrs. Benjamin Blase, will resign her position. There are already several applicants seeking the rumored vacancy.

CIRCLE HOTEL IS SOLD

At a public sale held in New Oxford Wednesday, the Circle Hotel, formerly owned by Robert Leppo, was sold by the administrator, Mrs. Alberta Leppo. William Leppo, brother of the former owner, was the purchaser, the price paid being $9,000. Possession will be given on October 1. It is rumored that Mr. Leppo will continue to conduct the business.

SELLS HER HOME

Announcement is made of the sale of the brick residence of Mrs. Lucy Eicholtz, of New Oxford, to Edward Hough, of that place. Terms were private. Mrs. Eicholtz will make her home with her son, Frank Eicholtz, New Oxford.

SALES DAY ADDS SATURDAY, SAID

Business Unusually Brisk In Many Places Throughout Wednesday.

BARGAINS CLEANED OUT

In Some Places Articles Marked at Special Prices Could Not be Supplied to Late-Comers.

Gettysburg today took stock of the results of the first Harvest Sale Day.

C. W. Cook, president of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, this morning said:

"From reports which have come to me from most of the seventy-two merchants and business places participating in the first cooperative merchandising sale, I am safe in saying that it added another Saturday to the four already in the month of August.

"In some quarters, merchants reported bigger business on Wednesday than on any Saturday in the busiest season of the year. In almost every instance Wednesday's sales exceeded those of another Wednesday by large percentages.

"We heard some dissatisfaction from a few merchants, but it must be remembered that August is a dull buying month, while the next two succeeding months, September and October, always witness a gradual increase in sales.

"However, the Chamber of Commerce is well-pleased with the cooperation shown by the business places of Gettysburg in the Harvest Sale."

Wednesday's Harvest Sale is the first of three experimental sales' day to be held in Gettysburg under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce.

In many of the stores business was exceptionally brisk from early in the morning until 9 o'clock at night, the hour set for closing on Harvest Sale Day, while in others the bulk of the buying came in the forenoon. Some of the business places reported trading during the afternoon as slow and the evening business as scarcely worth keeping open for.

In those places of business where two special bargains were offered for the day, most of the articles were sold and more could have been disposed of. One store sold twenty dozen pressed glass tumblers at a figure near cost and calls came for more which could not be supplied, it is reported.

Receiving tellers in Gettysburg banks today said deposits were far above those of an ordinary Thursday, these being a barometer Chamber of Commerce officials point to as indicating the extent of the special sales' day.

Some problems in connection with the first Harvest Sale Day and these will be discussed at a meeting of the members of the Chamber of Commerce at the fire engine house on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, so that similar obstacles will not be present at the second Harvest Sale to be conducted next month, the exact date of which has not yet been determined.

FATE OF KEPNER IN JUDGE'S HANDS

Spencer and Motter Deliver Summing Arguments in Alleged Murder.

(By Associated Press.)

Frederick, Aug. 16.—Closing arguments by counsel for the State and defense will be completed today in the trial of B. Evard Kepner, prominent local business man, accused of the murder of his wife, on June 18. Judges Worthington, Peters and Urner, of the Frederick county circuit court, who have been hearing evidence since August 7, will then take the case under advisement and a verdict may be rendered today.

The defense closed its case yesterday and arguments for both sides were begun during the afternoon's session of court.

The fate of B. Evard Kepner, charged with the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Grace Simmons Kepner, may be decided today by the three judges who have presided at the trial.

Testimony was completed at noon Wednesday and the arguments of the counsel for the State and defense began. When adjournment was taken (Continued on Second Page)

BONFIRE CAUSE OF WEDNESDAY ALARM

Mrs. Charles McKendrick Thought Waste Paper Fire Was Extinguished.

A bonfire, thought to have been extinguished, was the cause for an alarm turned in for the Gettysburg fire company shortly after 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles McKendrick during the afternoon had burned some waste paper at the rear of the lot behind her home at 238 South Washington street. She left the bonfire, she says, when she thought there was no more fire there.

During her absence, however, the smouldering paper set fire to a pile of dry shingles nearby and within a few minutes a large blaze was raging. Flames from this fire communicated with a small wooden outbuilding on McKendrick's lot and with a frame garage on the lot of George W. Myers, adjoining. An automobile belonging to John Ray was in the garage at the time, but this was gotten to safety before the garage fire gained headway.

Mrs. McKendrick carried several buckets of water and tried to extinguish the fire, but her efforts were futile, and an alarm was turned in for the fire company.

The new Brockway engine and crew responded and soon had a water line playing on the flames. In about ten minutes the blaze was extinguished. Mr. Myers estimates the damage to his garage at $50 and the damage to the McKendrick outbuilding is estimated at not more than $25.

Eshenauer, of West Fairview.

NEW STAMP WILL BE MEMORIAL TO HARDING

President Coolidge Wednesday approved the issuance by the Postoffice Department of a memorial stamp bearing the likeness of the late President Harding, it is reported. Designs for the new stamp, which will be of two-cent denomination, were submitted to the President by Postmaster General New.

The new stamp will be issued in large numbers, but will not replace the present two-cent stamp. It will be black in color, the only black stamp issued by the Postoffice Department, and will bear a profile bust of the late President, the name "Harding," the denomination and probably the years of Mr. Harding's birth and death.

SEASON'S CROPS ABUNDANT

Apples, Peaches, Plums and Sweet Corn Main Offerings at Market.

Apples, peaches, plums and sweet corn again were the chief offerings at curb market this morning, with prices of these commodities slightly lower at most hucksters' than at Tuesday's market. Large free stone peaches sold rapidly at $1 a basket, although some of this kind of fruit was offered as high as $1.50 a basket. Summer Rambo apples and other varieties were plentiful and found ready buyers at $1.25 a bushel. Sweet corn dropped to 20 cents a dozen ears, with the supply greater than the demand. Huckleberries remained firm at 25 cents a box, while eggs went to 30 cents a dozen, an increase of 2 cents over last week's quotation. Pears sold at $1 a bushel, cucumbers at 15 cents a box and tomatoes at 8 cents a box.

METEORITE FELL AT MOUNT JOY

State Geologist Tells of Finding Shooting Star In 1887.

IS ONE OF FIVE IN STATE

Within Next Few Weeks is Time For Annual Visit of Aerial Phenomenon. May Fall Again.

One of the five meteorites, or shooting stars, and the largest ever found in Pennsylvania, was unearthed near Gettysburg in 1887, according to R. W. Stone, assistant State geologist, in an article "Pennsylvania Meteorites," made public today.

Meteorites, commonly termed shooting stars, will make their annual appearance in large numbers in the evening sky in this and other sections of the country during the next few weeks, according to Mr. Stone, who adds that these are annual visitors diverging from a swarm of meteors which pursue a fixed path around the sun.

Five meteorites, all virtually solid iron, have been found in Pennsylvania, the geologist said. The first was discovered near Pittsburg in 1850 and others at Mt. Joy township, near Gettysburg, in 1887; at Bald Eagle Mountain near Williamsport in 1891; at Shrewsbury, York county, in 1907; and at New Baltimore, Somerset county, last year. According to chemical analyses these contained from 91 to 94 per cent iron, four to eight per cent nickel and minor amounts of cobalt, phosphorus, sulphur and copper.

"The almost identical composition of the Mt. Joy, New Baltimore, and Pittsburg meteorites and the fact that the three localities are practically in a straight line suggests that these may be parts from a larger body which was disrupted as it passed through the earth's atmosphere," Mr. Stone said. "The fact that the New Baltimore locality is 12 miles south of a line from Gettysburg to Pittsburg and that these cities are 150 miles apart does not seem incompatible (Continued on Third Page)

THOUSANDS AT BUCHANAN VALLEY

Annual Affair at Buchanan Valley Jesuit Mission Attracts Numbers.

Several thousand persons, representing a large area of this section of the State, gathered at the Field Mass held Wednesday at the Old Jesuit Mission, Buchanan Valley. The scene was laid in the midst of a natural spot of beauty.

The altar was built on the peak of Blue Ridge, where the vision wandered far over a wide sweep of farmlands and misty mountains. The rich vestments of those taking part in the mass and the music which accompanied it brought an Old World historic-religious atmosphere to the scene.

Father Will Whalen, the pastor, preached on "Women as Law-Makers and Law-Breakers." He praised the virtuous woman whose husband can always find her in her own home. He flayed the woman who isn't a real woman, but makes herself a poor copy of a man.

Epigrams abounded through the sermon, such as: "Many advanced women are like a mule,—too prone to kick nothing." "Women want men's privileges, but refuse to suffer men's punishments." A female jury sentenced a 16-year-old boy to the electric chair, but grew hysterical when a matronly murderess is meted out the same fate by a male jury."

Following the mass, a dinner was served by the women of the parish, and festivities of all kinds were prolonged into the night.

STOCK REPORT

Oils Continue Drop to Low Figures As Gas Cuts Go On.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Aug. 16.—The rapidity of the advance in many quarters during the morning indicated that the floating supply of stocks was scarce. Commission houses also reported increased public participation. Buying embraced all representative groups except the low-priced oils which continued to new low ground as a result of the recent cut in gasoline prices. Rails took on a new lease of life and advanced with industrials, gains of a point or so being quite among the active shares.

BOGUS NOTE PLOT IS INTERRUPTED

Second Raid in Week Prevents Circulation of Fake
$100 Notes.

New York, Aug. 16.—Seizure of a complete plant for the manufacture of counterfeit $100 federal reserve notes in Floral Park, L. I., Tuesday night, was announced Wednesday by Joseph A. Palma, chief of secret service agents in New York.

The capture was effected just as operators of the plant were running off the first set of proofs, and the promptness with which the secret service acted prevented any of the notes from getting into circulation. Five men, alleged to have been implicated in the plot, were arrested. The seizure was the second of its kind within a week. Mr. Palma disclosed that his men last Thursday had raided a counterfeit plant at Nassau, near Albany, where they also seized a plant for the manufacture of $100 federal reserve notes before any of the bogus money had reached circulation.

The plates seized in both instances, according to Mr. Palma, were manufactured in Canada, where a month ago secret service agents, cooperating with the dominion authorities, captured five Frenchmen with a complete set of plates and equipment for turning out $5 and $10 American bank notes.

The agents, Mr. Palma said, had been working on the counterfeit plot for six months. All three plants broken up were believed to have been directed by the same gang, as the plates in each case were of identical make.

The quintet arrested Tuesday night at Floral Park have made full confession, Mr. Palma said. They gave their names as Sam Cohn, Dave Cohen, Joseph Rosoff, Joseph Tattlebaum and George Sissneros. The men arrested at Nassau in the raid there last Thursday were George Hodgy, Paul Barber, Oscar Esequial and Daniel Kourjorjian.

Seizure Held Important

Washington, Aug. 16.—Seizure of the counterfeiting plant at Floral Park, L. I., is regarded by Chief Moran and the secret service as a piece of work that "knocked in the bud a very dangerous situation."

The chief said Wednesday that while none of the counterfeit money had been placed in circulation, channels already had been opened for its distribution as soon as it was ready.

Wednesday afternoon addresses had been delivered by Assistant Attorney General Spencer for the State and Attorney Motter for the defense.

The arguments will be continued today when Leo Weinberg, leading defense counsel, will endeavor to convince the court that Mrs. Kepner was not murdered, but committed suicide.

The court will take the case under advisement at the conclusion of Mr. Ander's summing up.

Extracts from Mr. Spencer's argument follow:

"We must consider the note Kepner wrote to the object of his infatuation after suspicion had fastened upon him in which he told her to admit that which was known to be true and to deny everything else. These were not his exact words, but were in effect what he meant.

"He lavished upon her presents of the most intimate character until he depleted his finances by that and other means. Then he began to dwell upon his wife's will. It would not leave him much, but enough to tide him over his difficulties.

"He left the pistol on the mantle with his mind perhaps dwelling on the hope that his wife would kill herself. She failed to do so and this thought, perhaps, led him to do the act himself.

"A few days before his wife's death he took that pistol to Mr. Seeger and asked to be shown how it was operated.

"All of the elements of evidence taken together are strong evidence of guilt, and are not explained, but they are denied."

Attorney Motter said among other things:

"Mr. Spencer spoke of the motive which prompted the murder and referred to the defendant's financial difficulty. Kepner would have received infinitely more if his wife lived than by her death. All told she had only $5,000 or $6,000.

"I believe that Mrs. Kepner did know that he was untrue to her. That fact was impressed upon her by statements of innuendo. His infidelity with Miss Eicketts is given as the controlling influence for the murder, but Miss Eicketts herself has testified that there was nothing immoral in their relations.

"What happened in that room could not possibly have occurred in the few minutes he was there. He could not have picked up the body off the floor, arranged it on the bed and then cleaned himself within that short time. I say then that there is a doubt that this is homicide.

"Credence must be given to the testimony of the witnesses who testified as to Mrs. Kepner's depression."

4 MEN ESCAPE FROM PRISONS

Three Saw Bars at Holmesburg
House of Correction and Flee.

ONE WORKS CLEVER RUSE

When Discharge Comes For Cell-Mate,
Auto Thief Answers And Walks Out
Free in His Place.

Philadelphia, Aug. 16.—Three sawed a window bar and escaped from the House of Correction early Wednesday, while an automobile thief waiting sentence escaped from Moyamensing prison by a clever ruse Tuesday night.

The man who escaped from Moyamensing prison is Albert Bamford, 23 years old, of Sunnyside avenue.

Charles H. Ritner, 24 years old, Ridge avenue near Nineteenth street; Walter A. Clark, 25, Kinsey street, Frankford, and Robert Lee, a negro, escaped from the House of Correction.

The latter prisoners made their escape by sawing a bar, bending it, and squeezing through the opening. They lowered themselves twelve feet to the ground, scaled a fence and fled.

Ritner was serving a year for using narcotic drugs; Clark, who is known as a robber, was sentenced to two years as a dope addict; Lee was serving three months for disorderly conduct.

Ritner was depended upon by the commonwealth to be one of the leading witnesses in connection with the sale of drugs in Moyamensing prison. At the trial, however, Ritner failed to testify to statements he had made previously to detectives.

Clark is a desperate criminal and has been arrested in connection with a number of daring robberies. John Mcleary, superintendent of the House of Correction, has begun an investigation into the escape.

The escape of Bamford is expected to result in changes in the methods now in vogue in Moyamensing prison for the discharging of prisoners.

Bamford was the cellmate of Joseph Sadownizak, who was committed August 11 to Moyamensing prison by Magistrate Pennock in default of $400 bail on the charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons.

Tuesday two men called to see Magistrate Pennock to obtain the Sadownizak release, but the magistrate said he had made a return to the district attorney's office. Later two men, one a city hall employee, visited the office of John Flaherty, clerk of the quarter sessions court, and sought to obtain the man's release. The officer refused to issue a warrant, and when this was refused a lawyer, whose name Mr. Flaherty does not know, wanted to enter bail.

This was refused by the clerk because of a rule of court prohibiting the acceptance of surety from lawyers. The clerk suggested that they either obtain real estate security of the bonds of a surety company. The bail later was entered by a surety company and a discharge issued.

The men went to the prison and presented the discharge. The guard went to the cell and called Sadownizak. Bamford answered to the name. He was turned over to the men and left the prison. Wednesday morning the escape was discovered. Previous to the release of Bamford there had been a shift in guards, and the man who released Bamford did not know either of the men.

Sadownizak was questioned by Inspectors Wagner and Williams and made a confession. He said that Bamford had suggested the substitution and that the automobile thief promised to sell several motorcars he had, aid in obtaining Sadownizak's release and give him some money in addition.

Because of the order for Sadownizak's release he was technically at liberty. The prison authorities after conferring with Assistant District Attorney Alessandrini issued a warrant for the arrest of both him and Bamford on the charge of conspiracy.

IS MONARCH TREE

Peach of Adjoining County Has Borne
Fruit For 50 Years.

What is believed to be the oldest bearing peach tree in York county is in the yard at the home of Harry Poff, Wrightsville. He states that he does not know the exact age of the tree, but that he is certain of the fact that it has borne fruit every year for 50 years. It bears a large, white peach, similar to the variety known as the Belle of Georgia.

It is a never-failing tree, this venerable ancient among peach trees, according to the report, and during the 50 years of its bearing never has it failed to produce a fairly abundant crop. At the present time it bears about 4 bushels of firm, large fruit. They are richly colored and of good flavor, it is also said.

This tree now measures 46 inches around the trunk two feet from the ground and appears sturdy and healthy. It never has known blight or diseases. Mr. Poff states that even insect pests avoid the tree.

EXPECT QUICK END IN STATE PAY CASE

Mandamus Proceedings Against State Treasurer Snyder Are Argued In Court.

Harrisburg, Aug. 16.—An early decision in the mandamus proceedings instituted by the commonwealth to compel State Treasurer Snyder to return with his reasons for disapproval of the salary requisitions which he has refused to sign was indicated Wednesday by the Dauphin county court, after hearing argument.

Attorney General Woodruff and W. A. Schnader, who argued the case for the commonwealth, insisted that Snyder be compelled to file his reasons for disapproving the requisitions on the ground that his refusal to give his reasons would render it doubtful whether the governor had authority under the act of 1811 to act as arbitrator in a dispute between the auditor general and state treasurer.

Former Lieutenant Governor Beidelman, one of counsel for Snyder, revealed that Snyder holds the state reorganization act, which provides a new method for the issuance of warrants, repealed the 1811 act. Proceedings against Snyder were brought under that act and Beidelman again challenged the commonwealth to institute proceedings under the code to test the validity of the organization act.

Attorney General Woodruff said: "We'll finish this case before we start with any further proceedings."

In cross-examination of the rival attorneys the court frequently indicated it did not consider the disputed requisitions sufficient grounds to come into court on Judges Hargest, Fox and Wickersham frequently indicated that they could not understand why the issue was raised over requisitions, counsel for Snyder having admitted that the requisitions were improperly in his possession and could be had any time they were desired.

"Why not return the requisitions to the auditor general?" asked Judge Wickersham.

"We are willing," returned former Secretary of the Commonwealth Myers, another of Snyder's counsel.

"That would end the case," returned Judge Wickersham.

The judges frequently indicated by their questions that they could not see why the treasurer retained the requisitions. Neither were they impressed with the explanation that he had notified Secretary King in July the requisitions would not be signed. The court held that the auditor general, and not a department head, was the proper authority to notify.

ENGLAND FAVORS NEW AIR ROUTES

Would Include All Possessions in New Lines to Be Established.

London, Aug. 16.—The latest plan for commercial aviation in England is the establishment of a British Imperial Airship service which will connect England with all the British possessions by regular air routes. The first part of the scheme, which was originated by Commander C. D. Burney, R. A. F., provides for the establishment of a service of super-Zeppelins to Australia. This has been placed before the Air Ministry, and there is every prospect of its adoption. The Burney scheme would immediately make England the foremost country in commercial aviation, and add considerably to the strength of the air forces.

The fact that England has not already a gigantic fleet of commercial planes is not due to lack of enthusiasm on the part of the commercial aviation companies. The English companies now operating air lines to Paris and Holland, with the aid of subsidies from the government, are making a success of their projects.

The government has previously been reticent in accepting these plans because of the huge sums involved and the small chance of such lines ever paying, but it is now expected that the Air Ministry will push the establishment of new air routes.

U. S. AND MEXICO SIGN AGREEMENT

American Delegates Will Hasten
Home To Submit Pact to Coolidge.

FORMS BASIS OF ACCORD

Senates of Two Countries Must Act,
When Appointment of U. S. Ambassador to Mexico Will Be Possible.

Mexico City, Aug. 16.—The records of the conference between the representatives of the United States and Mexico, embodying an agreement designed to make possible the resumption of diplomatic relations between the two nations, were signed here at 2:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The signatures concluded negotiations extending more than thirteen weeks between Charles B. Warren and John Barton Payne, as personal representatives of the American president, and Fernando Gonzalez Roa and Ramon Ross, for President Obregon. The actual signatures, however, were by John F. Uruquidí and J. Ralph Ringe, secretaries of the Mexican and American delegations, respectively.

The American delegates will leave soon for Washington on a special train, for submission of the records and the accompanying claims conventions to President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes.

It is expected here that the Mexican government's interpretations of the subsoil petroleum legislation and agrarian laws, contained in the records signed Wednesday, will be acceptable to the American administration and that the appointment of a United States ambassador to Mexico will not long be delayed.

Indications are that the two claims conventions, which are related intimately to the United States determination to obtain guarantees for American rights in Mexico, likewise will be submitted soon to the American and Mexican senates for approval, contingent on the extension of recognition.

Under the agrarian section American rights acquired prior to the 1917 constitution remain intact under the laws then in force and the provisions of the constitution of 1857, but lands acquired since May 1, 1917, it is agreed, are subject to the provisions of the latter constitution relative to the division of huge estates and also to subsequent agrarian reform laws.

Nothing is known officially relative to the subsoil petroleum rights of Americans, who acquired lands prior to May 1, 1917, but did not exploit or announce intention to exploit their lands for oil. It is understood the Mexican government is unwilling to assure their rights, but the United States delegates specifically reserved the rights of these individuals.

Though the American delegates have been disposed not to press their viewpoint on immediate cash compensation for American owned lands that the government is expropriating in pursuance of its policy of restoring communal lands to towns and villages from which they were taken, a strong stand has been maintained against expropriations illegally made under "color of law."

The claims conventions provide for settlement of American claims for damages suffered in the revolutionary period from 1910 to 1920 and for settlement of Mexican claims against the United States resulting from the Pershing expedition and the Vera Cruz occupation and American claims from 1858 to the present, except revolutionary claims, involving especially those damages suffered through application of the Mexican agrarian policy.

BROKER SENTENCED

Admits Charge of Passing Worthless
Checks For $150,000.

(By Associated Press.)
Philadelphia, Aug. 16.—Ernest A. Knoblauch, junior member of the bankrupt brokerage firm of Borden and Knoblauch, of this city, was today sentenced to two years in the county prison when he entered a plea of nolle contendere to a charge of passing a worthless check for $450,000. The check was made out to Kean, Taylor and Company, of New York, for payment of a block of United States Treasury certificates.

The sentence is to date from the time the banker was committed to jail last November after his firm had failed. The firm's liabilities were announced as in excess of $800,000 with assets of about $175,000.

Testifying in his own behalf, Knoblauch said today he had been the victim of a black mailing scheme and had given approximately $35,000 to a young woman of Atlantic City.

with the idea of a single source when it is known that the average velocity of meteorites passing through our atmosphere is computed to be between 20 and 30 miles a second and the height of passage above the earth may be several miles. Furthermore, as none of these was seen to fall, and the last was discovered seventy-two years after the first, all may have been buried in the soil for a hundred years or more.

Three of these meteorites were found by farmers while plowing, one by a man digging a hole to plant a tree, and the other by laborers gathering rock for a stone crusher. The smallest, found on Bald Eagle Mountain, near Williamsport, was about the size and shape of an adult human foot and weighed seven pounds. The Shrewsbury iron weighed twenty-four pounds, the New Baltimore about forty, and the Mt. Joy, the third largest found in the United States and the largest east of the Mississippi River, weighed 847 pounds. The weight of the Pittsburgh meteorite found in 1850 is not known because it was wrought into a bar and lost. It is reported as 292 pounds, but this does not agree with the statement that it was oval in shape and six or seven inches in diameter.

The five Pennsylvania meteorites now are distributed in various museums, a small fragment of the Pittsburgh one being in the Yale University museum. The main mass of the Mt. Joy "shooting star" went to the Vienna Museum although the National Museum at Washington, D. C., has a full sized cast of the original and several pieces. Part of the New Baltimore meteorite is in the New National Museum at Washington. The Bucknell University Museum at Lewisburg, Pa., has the Bald Eagle meteorite and the Shrewsbury meteorite is in possession of F. Justine Grugan, of Philadelphia, although a slice from it is in the National Museum.

The State Geological Survey advises against anyone spending time in searching for meteorites although it explains that the farmer probably has the best chance of finding them by plowing operations. As iron meteorites have a value estimated at $1 to $5 a pound, the survey suggests it would be worth while for any person who discovers an exceptionally heavy lump of native metal in the earth to call it to the attention of the State Geologist.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

OUR TONGUES

IN THOSE dear intimacies in the sacred environs of home, in legislative halls, in the tragedies of love and war, in our business relations with one another and in all the affairs of life, the tongue plays the leading role. And this it continues to do from the moment it frames its first word until it ceases to function and the curtain goes down on the final act.

It is the most potential power for good or evil, capable of filling hearts with the utmost joy or breaking them beyond repair.

To suffer day after day under the lash of a tongue that is continuously upbraiding, that cracks and snaps upon the slightest provocation, and often without any provocation at all, is a punishment which sensitive mortals cannot long endure without wishing for an early return to the dust.

In the house of nagging tongues, happiness rests on a precarious base, liable at any moment to topple over and break to pieces.

Marriage under such conditions is not an Arcadia, but a land of terror where a few cruel words may sweep a home from its comfortable foundation.

Husbands and wives are amiable and kindly enough until mischievous tongues break loose and open hostilities. Then there is too much heat in the air for endurance.

In the torrid temperature both lose their self-respect and the war is on until the verbal fight ends between the contestants in the open divorce court.

But the tongues whose tragedies are seldom told are those inarticulate members that neither praise nor censure.

Often a heart is hungry, but miserly tongues starve it to death.

An affectionate wife waits years for a word of love or admiration. She waits months and years for it, but it never is spoken.

Losing hope, she fades away as a rose in the chill winds of autumn. And this is equally true of husbands whose homes are perpetually icy in the repelling atmosphere of wives who have forgotten the old love story and lounge like mutes at their own fire-side.

Bestow smiles and encouraging words while the days are yours.

Tell your wives and husbands that you love them. Tell them often and see their faces brighten. Experience each day the same ecstatic joy that was yours when the wedding march was singing.

Two Children Hurt

HANOVER.—Louise Jacobs, aged 4 years, and Richard Therit, aged 3 years, residing with their grandmother, Mrs. Mary Shambrook, Locust Street, extended, were both severely injured when run over by an automobile while playing in the alley adjoining their home. The little boy sustained a deep cut on the arm and severe bruises on the legs and body, while at first it was feared the little girl was injured internally. However, they are both resting comfortably and no serious results are anticipated. They are under the care of Dr. George H. Jordy. The driver of the car could not be found. The machine was said to have been operated by a woman.

York St. Parking Rule

HANOVER.—Chief Crabbs, announced a new parking, regulation for automobiles, which, from now on by consent of the Burgess and all the members of Council, will require that parking be done parallel with the curb on both sides of York Street instead of diagonally on the West Side as heretofore, all cars to be within six inches of the curb. The new regulation goes into effect at once and autoists are asked to govern themselves accordingly. Prosecution will follow the parking of cars within a distance of ten feet from the corner of any street or alley.

Boy Falls Under Harrow

HANOVER.—While operating a disc harrow, Ralph Forry, ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Forry residing on the Forry estate, Pennville, was shaken from the seat and pinned under the discs of the harrow, Tuesday afternoon. The little fellow called to the horses as he was falling and fortunately they stopped before the heavy machine passed over his body. However, he fell face down and the revolving discs had passed up his legs to the abdomen before the horses stopped. Miss Helena Forry, a sister, saw the accident and ran to his rescue. Unable to get the machine off of the boy she called for help and Mrs. C. N. Barnhart, Mrs. Harry Sandruck and Mrs. Clarence Crawford assisted in lifting the machine from the body of the boy. Dr. George H. Jordy was called but on examination found no bones broken and the young ten year old farmer, other than severe bruises, is none the worse for his experience.

ONE OF THOSE LONG-WINGED VISITORS

By H. Bedford Jones

They suspected some ruse, held off, watching him. Petit Jean cursed them, and began to make a cigarette; he walked to the rail, eying the shore and the water, then turned and beckoned.

They perceived that the madness had left him, and sullenly approached, albeit with much precaution. Now it was seen that a new change had come into the face of Petit Jean; the heretofore glittering eyes had become bloodshot, with a crimson muck.

"I shan't hurt you, little ones," he said, and laughed. "Come and do what papa says! You, too," and he stabbed at two of them with his finger, making them start back, "get into the boat, row up to the Lavergne place, and bring me down a launch. If those niggers ask any questions, say that everybody has gone for a cruise, say anything you like! Better bring a canoe for yourselves, too."

"I'll be off as soon as you get back. Then you can loot what you want from the yacht here, and set fire to her. Understand?"

They assented, gradually regaining confidence in him.

"You other three," he went on, "stay aboard. Do what you like, but see that one of you remains on watch. If any boats pass and ask questions, say that we ran ashore and that M'sieu' Macarty has gone to Latouche to get a large boat to pull us off. Let no one aboard. You understand?"

They assented again. Petit Jean watched them shrink from his lurid eyes, and smiled.

"I shall sleep for an hour; at the end of that time, waken me. The boat will heel over a little as the tide goes down. When the tide comes in again this afternoon, she will float. Do what you like with her—she is yours. But I advise you to loot and burn her at once. That is all. Off with you, now!"

He turned, walked back to the companionway, and vanished there.

The five men looked one at another, exchanged a shrug and a muttered word, and obeyed his orders in a species of dumb terror. Two got down into the trailing boat, and began to row her upstream. The other three conferred for a moment, then two of them went to their own quarters, for they gained little sleep the preceding night. Alce, chosen to stay on watch, seated himself on the deck, took a fishing line from his pocket and cast it over the rail, and began to smoke his pipe.

The eastern sky broke into a flame as the new day arrived.

The ensuing hour dragged its slow length along without incident. The only busy man aboard the yacht was the steward, to whom the brooding Alce paid no attention.

John Solomon, indeed, went about his work in an unconcerned and placid manner as though no sequence of tragedy had invested this yacht with a tragic veil of horror. He carried a tray to Alce Lavergne's cabin, and was in there a long while, talking with her. When he came out, he was puffing at his clay pipe, and appeared quite satisfied with himself.

A little later, he returned for her tray and bore it to the galley. Then he went down the companionway again, but this time he was not smoking; this time he went directly to the cabin that had been occupied by David Macarty. The door was locked, but for a little the steward worked softly at the lock. Presently the door opened under his hand. He saw Petit Jean stretched out in the bunk, snoring lustily, and beside him was the automatic pistol taken from Felix Macarty.

After a time he was on deck again. Alce, the man of guard, paid him no attention.

When the appointed hour had gone, Alce went below and awakened Petit Jean by pounding at the door. Hennepin opened the door and came out, sleepily.

"Not back yet with the launch? Tell that fool steward to fetch me some coffee, here in the saloon cabin. Then stay on watch."

The man departed. Petit Jean went into the saloon and dropped into a chair at the table. He did not observe that the place had been tidied up, nor that the scrap of paper had disappeared from the floor. He was thinking of something else.

With the falling of the tide, the yacht had heeled over quite a little, so that her decks were inclined. The skylight above the saloon was pointing toward the eastern sky, and all the glory of the morning sunlight came through the clouded glass, filling the place with a diffused glare of light.

From his pocket, Petit Jean drew out the two little boxes, and set them on the table before him. He left them unopened. A moment later Solomon appeared, with a tray, and set coffee and fresh-made toast before the out-law.

"Fetch M'm'selle Lavergne here in ten minutes," commanded Petit Jean, "and see to it that she does not go on deck instead."

"Yes, sir," returned Solomon, and disappeared.

Petit Jean wolfed the toast, gulped at the coffee, and then shoved the dishes back carelessly. With a quick catch of his breath, as though he had been awaiting this moment, he opened the smaller box and displayed the four great gems. He relapsed into a motionless silence, staring at them with new amazement.

If they had been glorious on the preceding evening under artificial light, now beneath the flood of new daylight they were splendid beyond words, indescribable in their beauty. Few men have ever looked with the pride of ownership upon four such jewels as these—the great black pearl lustrous as some lost star plucked from Erebus; the twin pink gem, luminous sister that reflected the rosy fulgence of the morning; and the diamond that coruscated in its bitter, dazzling acerbity.

What did Petit Jean Hennepin see in these four precious things? Not money alone, nor beauty, nor rarity; none of these could have drawn into his face such a devil of inhumanity as was compelled there as he gazed! These things, which react alike on no two men, awakened all the beast in this man.

Did this evil spirit divine the lust and blood which these precious objects had aroused in the past, and would rouse again? Was it this which evoked into his face that frightful devil of malign violence?

A movement attracted his attention. He looked up and saw Alce Lavergne standing in the doorway.

Under his look, the face of the girl whitened. Yet her eyes did not lose that clear serenity which so distinguished her; she met his keenly piercing regard, and baffled it by the sheer magic of her virginal spirit. His eyes fell from hers.

"What do you want with me?" she asked quietly.

Petit Jean stirred a little. By an effort, he became composed. He came to his feet and stood gazing at her emerald-cloaked shape. He looked at her eyes again, and now his gaze was quick and hard, terrible in its evil menace.

Hatred of her serene purity flamed in his face.

"I want you," he said, speaking the guttural patois which came naturally to his lips. "You shall go away with me now. You belong to me."

The Face of the Girl Whitened.

Perhaps he was astonished to find no fear, no terror, in her face. She was afraid, yes; the pulse at her throat, the quick color in her cheeks, betrayed inward fear, yet none showed in her eyes. And her voice was steady, cool—it maddened the brute before her.

CONQUEST OF HYDROPHOBIA

Few persons living today realize to the full the terrible ravages and the awful suffering that were caused by hydrophobia or rabies.

The story of its conquest has been told many times, but the very freedom we enjoy, thanks to the epochal work of Pasteur and his co-workers, is liable to dim our appreciation and lead us to forget. The fight against this scourge had been waged for centuries and the best that had been accomplished was the discovery that the application of a red hot iron to the wound caused by the bite of a rabid dog might prevent the development of the dread disease.

In a recent issue of Hygeia, Dr. Morris Fishbein reviewed the history of Pasteur's success with graphic touches of intimate personal details concerning the humanity of the great master, his tenderness with animals and his renunciation to vivisection. When success in the prevention of hydrophobia in animals had been proved beyond the possibility of doubt, Pasteur still hesitated to apply his method to the treatment of human beings. It was not until July 6, 1885, that the first human treatment was given.

"On that day, an Alsatian boy, Joseph Meister, aged 9 years, accompanied by his mother, entered Pasteur's laboratory. Two days before the boy had been bitten by a mad dog."

It was only after much hesitation and consultation with physicians that he finally decided to try. As the inoculations of rabid virus were given in more virulent dosage, "Pasteur became exceedingly anxious" and we have the authority of his wife for the assertion that he slept badly and dreaded the last inoculations.

The results are known to all, but few realize that this work and the animal experimentation that made it possible have been the foundation on which has been built much of the success in disease prevention that today, only forty years later, we accept as commonplace.

Just Folks

AN AUNT

I hold no quarrel with the world
O'er which our lives are spanned;
The more I see its ways unfurled,
I find things wisely planned.
Though some believe that circumstance
Shapes all our joys, I can't;
I'm certain it was more than chance
That gave our babes an aunt.

When first this race of our's began
And little ones were few,
Think you that in the mind of man
The aunt idea grew?
I fancy that the Lord above
Who guards the tenderest plant
Looked down and said: "For boundless love

That baby needs an aunt.

They cannot all have children there,
For that would never do;
There must be some with time to spare
To mind the babies, too;
There must be some to give them joys
A mother simply can't,
And so the little girls and boys
Shall also have an aunt."

Now aunts are everywhere about
Their gifts of love to bring,
To whisper, when the youngsters shout,
"Oh, let them have their fling!"
And next unto their mother's love,
The tenderest love extant
Is that which marks the conduct of
A good old-fashioned aunt.

Paragraphs From Nearby Counties Washington

Gas Prices Drop

HAGERSTOWN.—The "price war" on gasoline raging in the Middle West for the past two days turned its attack on the eastern seaboard and invaded Maryland Tuesday, to the surprise of the many oil companies in this section. According to an Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore a cut of one cent throughout the State was announced effective Wednesday on wholesale and retail prices of gasoline by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey through its Baltimore office. The drop in price of the Standard Oil Company gasoline would not be put into effect Wednesday, G. M. Becker, local branch manager of the company, stated. Mr. Becker said should he receive instructions of the change in price, new prices would be made Thursday morning, and he couldn't do so until notified by the Baltimore office.

Will Remodel Court House

HAGERSTOWN.—The contract for remodeling the Court Room in such a manner as to eliminate much of the noise which for years had made it difficult to hear trials was awarded to George B. McWolf by the Board of County Commissioners. The work will be started in a short time. The feature of the remodeling work will be the installation of the John Manville system of making rooms silent. The West and North ends of the rooms will be cut off from the main room and made into two large rooms and a hall way. The new rooms will be used as offices. The room will be redecorated and the lighting system improved. It is planned to have the Court Room completed in time for the November term of Court.

Car Companies Plan Picnic

HAGERSTOWN.—One of the most elaborately staged picnics ever held at Braddock Heights will be given to the employees of the Potomac Public Service Company and subsidiaries on August 23 and 24, according to announcement made at the Potomac Public Service Company's office. Employees of the Frederick, Martinsburg, Hagerstown, Waynesboro, Winchester, Berkeley Springs and Frostburg districts will participate in the affair. A crowd, expected to aggregate a total of 2000 persons, will attend both days. Details are being worked out by a special committee for the throwing open of all amusements at the Heights to the employees of the company. The picnickers will have free access to the dancing floors, bowling alleys, skating rink, merry-go-round, and all other amusements at the park.

Franklin

Forger Caught 3 More

WAYNESBORO.—Three more checks were cashed by persons in Waynesboro for Samuel T. Shockey, of near Monterey, to which he had forged the signature of his father, according to reports received by the police. Whether or not any others have been victimized by the young forger could not be learned, but no others have come forward to enter complaint before the police. Those who were defrauded by Shockey in addition to the first trio named were Harry Criswell, Jr., who cashed a check for $13 on a purchase of ninety-five cents worth of merchandise; Samuel Kauffman of the Philadelphia Shoe store who sold merchandise worth $4.85 and took a check for $34 in payment therefore; and the First National Bank where it was said a check for some twenty-odd dollars was cashed by an unsuspecting teller.

Auxiliary Plans Picnic

WAYNESBORO.—The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion at their regular monthly meeting at the Y. M. C. A. decided to hold their annual picnic at Cold Springs Park, Tuesday evening, August 28. It was further decided to invite the members of the American Legion to be their guests on this occasion. According to the plans formulated the party will leave between 4 and 6 o'clock in the evening and upon their arrival at the park a picnic lunch will be served to all. There will be a number of races and events following which the evening will be turned over to those who wish to dance. Tables for those who wish to play cards will be provided.

Two Autos Crash

WAYNESBORO.—Two cars were damaged when they collided at the intersection of Clayton and East Second streets. The roadster, owned by Dr. M. Wertz and driven by Owen Morganthal, East Second street, and the coupe, driven by Mrs. Amos Downin, near Ringgold, were the two cars damaged. The Wertz car was entering Clayton avenue from Second street and the coupe was traveling south on Clayton avenue, both drivers claiming that an automobile preceding the coupe shut off the view of each other until the sides of their cars had touched and interlocked in such a way that they were both upon the sidewalk before they could be brought to a stop.

Frederick

Suicide Attempt Succeeds

FREDERICK.—Mrs. Ethel Hutzell, 25 years old, residing near Dahlgren, along the State Road, south of Moonsboro, on Saturday night, committed suicide by taking a dose of strychnine. She did in the arms of her husband after asking him to hold her.

Mrs. Hutzell had been in a cheerful mood all day Saturday. In the afternoon with her husband, Elmer Hutzell, and her children, she attended a picnic at Zittletown. In the evening the family went to Boonsboro. While in the town she is said to have purchased the poison which later caused her death. No motive has been found for the suicide. Some time ago, it is said, the Hutzells had a little domestic trouble. This had all been forgotten. Besides her husband the children surviving are: Leroy and Kenneth. Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Moss, Boonsboro; brother, Elmer Moss, Sharpsburg; sister, Mrs. Clarence Palmer, Hagerstown, also survive.

Teachers Take Exams.

FREDERICK.—Twenty-three embryo teachers assembled in the Academy building Monday for the first session of the August teachers' examinations. Most of the aspirants were those who had just completed sessions at summer schools. There were but five men numbered among those taking the examinations. Another session was held Tuesday with two more on Wednesday. This is the second time this summer that teachers' examinations have been held here. It has been customary to hold examinations shortly after the schools close for the summer vacation and again in August. However, this custom will be discontinued in the future and only the examinations early in the summer will be held.

Name Convention Delegates

FREDERICK.—Delegates from Frederick district to the Republican nominating convention for Frederick county were announced Tuesday. The convention will be held Thursday morning at eleven o'clock at the Armory. At that time nominations will be made for the election to be held in the fall. Considerable interest attaches to this convention. The Democrats have already decided upon a ticket and there is considerable interest being manifested in the Republican nominees to oppose them. Republican delegates and central committeemen were elected at primary conventions in the various districts on Saturday.

Rheumatic Pains Go Swollen Joints Vanish

Rheuma—The One Safe and Quick-Acting Remedy for Rheumatism, Gout and Sciatica. Money Back if it Doesn't Satisfy.

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma: the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, gout and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous uric acid is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

Don't think because Rheuma is not expensive that it won't bring you back to health. There is no guess work about it. That's why Peoples Drug Store and good druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick and blessed relief almost at once.

LITTLE MISS

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE stranger was weary with his long journey, and the great old house in the restful cool green grounds looked most refreshing. He was just considering asking for a glass of milk, as an excuse to linger in the grateful shade when a crude but artistic sign on a tree trunk nearby attracted his attention. "Tea," read the sign, "and cookies and sandwiches for sale."

Amsden lost no time in running his car to the grass at the side of the road and entering the old garden.

"Another pretentious old family in reduced circumstances," Amsden thought. He lifted the enameled knocker of blue forget-me-nots and waited. He was surprised to see a colored man, bent and aged, open the door in response to his summons.

The colored servant wore an ancient livery and he held up his finger warningly, but with an apologetic smile.

"Little Miss," said the old man, "is playing in the balcony. We always listen when Little Miss plays soft like that—seems as heaven must be pretty close then."

The music of a piano came from above; glancing up Amsden saw on the wide stair a small woman before the instrument. An old minuet she played in keeping with her surroundings. Then it came to the business man that all this setting might be an advertisement for an unusual tea room. "Very pretty," he remarked to the man in livery, "and may I have light luncheon?"

Again the pathos of the minuet caught him and he saw as he looked back into the hall, other listening figures huddled—an old woman, her white locks framing a black wrinkled face—another old woman white of face and wrinkled, too. As the music on the landing ceased they moved away, and the young woman who played turned on her stool and saw Amsden framed in the doorway. At once she came toward him.

"The ge'man, Miss Dollie," the old man said, "wanted some luncheon. Shall I bring it on a tray to the arbor, or will you serve in the big dining room?"

"The arbor, don't you think," said the person addressed as Miss Dollie, "sounds inviting on so warm a day?"

"Most inviting," Amsden promptly agreed. "It was a happy discovery to find your hospitable home."

"A happy discovery," the young woman smilingly replied, as she led the way to the arbor, "of mine when I thought of serving lunches to hungry travelers. Old mansions must be turned to some use in order to support themselves."

"And you manage to keep up the place in this manner?" he asked conversationally, as his hostess arranged the table.

She shrugged her shoulders ruefully. "We manage after a fashion," she confided, "helped out with my painted luncheon cards and favors. Presently I will bring some for your inspection, that you may, perhaps, recommend them to your friends in the city. We are so isolated here. I find my models in this glory-garden."

"You will pardon me," Amsden said, "but I cannot get over the sensation of having gone back a century to the age of heliotrope and pillared old homes of 'quality'—to music that is music, and to hospitality that is enjoyable."

"That," replied Miss Dollie, "comes with the atmosphere. I never quite banish the feeling myself. This great place of my fathers, long gone, was willed to me by my grandfather while I was busy in a city office. When I came out to look the place over—will you believe—my greatest problem was the servants. Poor old Uncle Jim, who has never known any other home, would have to go to an old folks' home—while all his heart is here. And Aunt Jasmine, who nursed my own mother years ago—Miss Dollie they called her—and Mrs. Prim, the housekeeper, who has shown such faithful service—all homeless, to be sent to strange places when they love every flower in the garden. But grandfather left no money with his estate. Long ago he disinherited my mother because her marriage did not please him. So now, here I was, with Uncle Jim and Aunt Jasmine, and rheumatic Mrs. Prim, and the estate of my ancestors!"

"And so we got together—joined forces and opened our tea room."

"And gave up a satisfactory position in the city," Amsden asked amazed, "to live in solitude with old servants?"

"I am," the young woman said slowly. "Miss Dollie to them—their loved 'Miss Dollie' come back. And I am happy—almost. A little lonely at times, but then, may one not be lonely also in a city?"

"I," said Amsden gravely, "have always been lonely." It came to him that he had never realized that fact before.

He looked back to the gates as he sat in his car to where the young woman in the lavender frock stood waving him good-by. He was glad that she had trusted him with a packet of her painted cards, for he knew that the old house, and the old garden—and the blue eyes of "Little Miss"—would call and call to him until, joyously, he must obey the call. And he knew, too, in the prophesy of dreaming, that he would win and claim the tender heart which had compassionated those helpless old people who were near to heaven "when 'Miss Dollie' played."

The circular front of the skirt here sketched is accentuated by a flounce that also trims the bottom of the skirt. Carrying out the same idea sleeves may be cut with a curve from wrist to elbow and edged with ruffles.

For Furniture Designers.

A recent exhibition of old American furniture contained a rocking chair of the Windsor type which had a drawer under its seat. Why not popularize this idea in chairs built today for the diminutive home whose just boast, "I am easy to take care of," sometimes calls forth the answering wail, "Yes, but where shall I put my things while I do it?"
